

What an adventure it was to wake up every day,
the blare of my alarm rattling my heart,
and the warmth of my bed made me wish I could stay.

What an adventure it was to bask in the sun's rays,
on a hot summer day,
until my eyes start to haze.

What an adventure it was to meet friends at school,
they made things worth it,
when I ran out of fuel,

What an adventure it was to look at the sky,
to watch the sunset or rise.

I'll miss it when I die.

What an adventure it was to spend Christmas with family,
enjoying mom's chicken wings and my aunt's desserts,
how I didn't get sick is almost uncanny.

What an adventure it was to be alive.

Remember to take care of yourself,
as no one should spend their life just trying to survive.

Life.

What an adventure life was.
