

THE DARK SEA

SPLASH, the lure hits the water
Waves crash and bash against the boat
Lighting strikes the air, BOOM!
Then out of nowhere the line takes off
Quick grab it, Ahhh Splash I enter the surf.
I am going farther down every second.
The bitter water stings my eyes
Nothing but darkness and lonesome
What was only a few minutes felt like hours
The fish finally stop moving a floated up to the surface
I swam ashore to a beach and waited out the storm
And for the fish well it was 64 yes 64 feet.
Well that was some sort of adventure am I right
But a shark came and eat the fish up but was still hungry so I began to run
It caught up and there goes my head
I woke up in my bed and said I still have My head.
